welcome

Welcome to another edition of Parrys 'BELLA' magazine.

Summer ... some love it, others hate it.

Summer in Perth is characterised by school holidays, Test cricket, beach walks, sunburnt tourists and Post-Christmas Sales.

It could also include all of those 'missing family members and friends' who suddenly invite themselves over to your house for Christmas Lunch because you have a pool or air-conditioning.

Either way, the question I want to leave you is 'Why Not? ... Why not reward yourself with a new floor for Summer?' What a perfect Christmas present for yourself.

Parrys will be looking at a Pre-Christmas Sale running through December so the early birds can get in and take advantage of some flooring bargains. Why rush around post-Christmas with the crowds? Take it easy, pop into one of our 5 stores, and will be 6 when our new Joondalup store opens mid-December, buy now at discounted prices and install in 2023 so you do not have to rush!

Let us all look forward to Summer this year that includes a New Parrys floor!

Enjoy our Summer Bella Magazine.

HOT Tip This Summer

PREDICTION: This summer is going to be HOT!

While we're not weather experts at Parrys, you don't need a degree in meteorology to work out that Perth is in for its usual run of hot days and nights come summer!

When it comes to keeping cool in the hottest months of the year, most Australian families turn their attention to air-conditioning and fans. Fewer people think about the best flooring to help bring down the heat in their home but, as we're flooring experts, we understand how much of a part it can play in staying cool.

The truth is, hard floors don't hold heat and are the coolest to walk on and live with, making them a clear winner for houses in a climate like Perth where it's generally that little bit on the warmer side all year round. That said, we still believe carpet is better in theatre rooms – for sound purposes – and in bedrooms because of the warmth they offer throughout the winter months.

Buuuut, we understand when the temperatures start peaking in mid-January / February – or when your air-conditioning has packed it in – the last thing you're worried about is keeping warm in winter! If your home is one of those where it's hard to find even a hint of cool on those sweltering 30 degree nights (and whose isn't!), upping the amount of hard flooring you have is a great idea. In fact, in a perfect world, we would lay hardwood flooring throughout the house – including in all bedrooms. Then, come winter, you could roll out oversized rugs in bedrooms and in central hubs, like lounges, for insulation and extra warmth.

The spaces in our homes where we congregate are the ideal places to embrace hard flooring. As more of us gather in an area, the temperature is going to rise further, so leaning towards flooring that can bring the heat down a notch in these spaces is always a priority. It's not just about comfort either – it can help keep your cooling costs down and, with electricity prices on the up, it's critical to consider this factor.

So, what type of flooring delivers in the keeping cool stakes? At Parrys, we love Luxury Vinyl. It's waterproof and resistant to scratches and scuffs, making it a great choice, especially for high traffic areas and homes with pets and kids! It also looks fabulous, is easy to look after and is highly durable.

Another excellent option is Hybrid Flooring. It's cost-effective and easy to use in new homes and is ideal for renovations too. Hybrid Flooring provides that cooler feeling everybody is searching for in hot weather, is reliant, and boasts a beautiful appearance, ensuring it will be the envy of guests dropping in to your house for that summer Sunday barbecue.

At Parrys, we know that every abode is different and everybody's style is different – and we know how crucial it is that your flooring caters to your needs all year round. So, come talk to us; we predict we'll find the perfect flooring solution for your home.

Hybrid Flooring

And Why You Need It In Your Home

Hybrid flooring is, as the name suggests, a fusion of the popular vinyl and laminate flooring options. Hybrid flooring is becoming increasingly popular across Perth and throughout Australia. This is why you need Hybrid flooring in your home:

Appearance

Hybrid is a stunning-looking but high performing flooring option. It combines the striking appearance of a hardwood floor with the underfoot comfort and confidence of a lay-anywhere flooring. Use hybrid flooring to keep the look and the style consistent throughout your home.

Unleash your artistic side and go for a real visual statement. The creative within you may choose to lay different wood styles depending on the living space. Check out Parrys Flooring Solutions. Our website has a large variety of hardwood designs for hybrid flooring.

Easy installation

One of the benefits of hybrid flooring is the 'click and lock' installation system. The boards slide and secure into each other. This means installation of the flooring is a simple D.I.Y installation process. Hybrid is known as a 'floating floor', so you may even be able to install it over the top of your current flooring. Ask the flooring specialists for advice at any of Parry Flooring Solutions warehouses. Read the step-by-step installation guide available on Parry's website.

Durability

Consisting of multiple layers of materials delivering a very durable, hard-wearing floor. Scratch-proof and stain-resistant. Waterproof and resistant to extremes of temperature. Hybrid flooring doesn't fade in sunlight. Perfect for the extremes of the Australian climate. Suitable for potentially wet areas, like laundries or kitchens. Your flooring will keep its stunning appearance for years, even in high-traffic areas of your home.

It's Waterproof!

Not water-resistant, like laminate. Hybrid is 100% waterproof. The flooring looks as good in laundries as in your bedroom. Hardwood appearance but no risk of warping if it gets wet, thanks to the limestone composite core board. You can even mop it clean.!

Simple cleaning and maintenance

The easiest to maintain flooring solution available! The appearance of hardwood but no need to sand or polish. Scratch and stain-resistant. Hybrid flooring is odour-proof and is ideal in areas with pets. To maintain an as-new appearance, a regular vacuum or sweep is all that's needed. Being waterproof, you can mop it clean, if you like!

Affordability

Your home will have great-looking hardwood-look floors without the hardwood price tag. This type of flooring will keep that stunning appearance for years. No expensive and tricky sanding and polishing needed. Very simple to clean and maintain and DIY installation. This is the best cost-effective way to give your home the Wow factor right from the front door.

Hybrid flooring at Parrys Flooring Solutions

Parry's supply and install flooring across the entire Perth metropolitan area and is one of the biggest stockists of hybrid flooring. Our range includes our most affordable Aquaclic flooring, with high definition wood textures. Look into our Poseidon, Maxi-7 and Swan ranges as well for some fantastic colour choices. Visit one of our large warehouses and see our large range of competitively priced hybrid flooring. Ask one of our specialists for advice to help your choice. See for yourself why you need hybrid flooring in your home!

Can Hybrid Flooring Lay Over Existing Flooring?

One of the questions we get with our new HYBRID product, is that can we lay it on existing floors? The answer is 'yes' and 'no'.

For the no's; you cannot lay it on uneven surfaces like carpet, bricks or slate. When HYBRID floors are laid on uneven surfaces, there's undue pressure on the joining systems. It could cause cracks. So it is not wise to do this.

On even surfaces like tiles, plywood, timber and vinyl floors, which are nice and flat, the answer is yes, you can lay directly over the top. A test that I ask the customers to do is get a big stick of some sort or straight edge. Go down and put the straight edge on the floor at different angles all over the floor. If it is flat wherever you go, then you've got an even floor. If it rocks, then we have a problem.

Just remember, if you are going to lay HYBRID on an existing floor, you have got to think of the height it will become and the height of existing doors and doorways. There is nothing worse than laying a new floor and then trying to open a door and it is just not going to open or close properly.

The last thing to consider is the underlay. All our hybrid has in-built underlay. We do sell extra underlay for those people who have apartments and they want that extra acoustic noise levels reduced. We recommend the 2mm rubber soundproof underlay.

So come into one of our Parrys Flooring Solutions stores, see our sales guys, and they'll talk about the benefits of hybrid, discuss about your existing floor and if we can lay it directly on top.

What Are AC Ratings?

When looking to purchase laminate flooring, it is crucial to know beforehand how it will perform under specific traffic conditions over the long haul. Laminate AC ratings have been put in place to protect consumers by giving them a guide to get their money's worth.

The AC rating establishes the durability of a certain laminate product, helping you understand the suitability for its intended application (i.e. residential or commercial application).

What is an AC rating?

AC stands for "Abrasion Class" and the AC rating you can see on product descriptions is an internationally accepted system of classification of laminate flooring durability. In Australia, a laminate undergoes many different testing methods, in line with the European Standard EN 13329:2000, to assess its long-term wear resistance.

Some of these testing methods involve using the Taber abrasion machine, an abrasive wheel, and a leather wheel. A specific grade of sandpaper is also used, wearing away at the laminate's surface layer until a certain point of wear is reached.

The AC rating is then a reliable and unbiased indicator of laminate flooring durability, because these tests are performed by a third party and they cover all the different ways a laminate can wear.

What are the different types of AC ratings?

Based on the results of the tests, a laminate is designated an abrasion class that ranges from AC1 to AC5 rating, with AC5 being the most wear resistant class. Knowing the different types of AC ratings will help you shop smart.

AC1 rated laminate flooring is suitable for rooms that get light foot traffic only. We usually recommend to install this product preferably in guest bedrooms and dining rooms that are used every now and then,

AC2 rated laminate is suitable for areas with moderate foot traffic, so we won't recommend installing this floorcovering in high traffic areas such as hallways or living rooms. However, laminate floors with an AC2 rating are ideal for family rooms and bedrooms that do get some traffic.

AC3 rated laminate flooring represents the highest rating for homeowners, so it's intended to be used in any domestic areas that get heavy foot traffic. These include living rooms, hallways, conservatories, stairs, kitchen, etc.

AC4 rating is the first level specifically intended for commercial usage. AC4 rated laminate is suitable for moderately trafficked commercial spaces such as boutiques, offices, salons, and cafes.

AC5 rating is the highest durability rating. AC5 is suitable for high-traffic commercial areas, such as restaurants, showrooms, department stores, and public buildings that get lots of back and forth traffic.

What rated laminate flooring do I need?

As aforementioned, AC1, AC2, and AC3 rated laminate flooring are intended for domestic usage only, while AC4 and AC5 rated laminate flooring are suitable strictly for commercial application.

Each AC rating consists of a 60% increase in wear over the previous class. For instance, AC2 rated laminate is more wear resistant than AC1 rated laminate by 60%. AC3 rated laminate flooring is more wear resistant than AC2 by 60% and more wear resistant than AC1 by 120%. AC4 rated laminate is more wear resistant than AC3 by 60%, than AC2 by 120%, and than AC1 by 180%.

With higher AC ratings, you will thus benefit from a longer life for your laminate flooring. When shopping around for laminate, it's essential to balance the durability of a laminate with its price, because the higher the AC rating, the higher the price tag.

For residential usage, AC3 rated laminate flooring is the ideal choice thanks to its excellent durability, cost-effectiveness and versatility. You can use AC3 rated laminate pretty much everywhere in your home without worrying about its durability in the long run.

You may however ask yourself, "why not invest in an AC4 or even AC5 rated laminate that can last a lifetime in my home?" Well, the first reason why these are not worth the investment for residential purposes is that AC5 and, to a lesser extent, AC4 have textures that are too rough for domestic use. That's because the wear layer (which is the top layer) of the AC5 and AC4 rated laminate flooring is typically high-pressure laminate (HPL), making these laminate floors anything but pleasant underfoot.

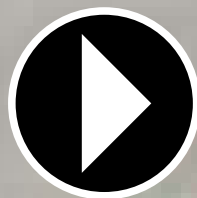

Secondly, it's counter-intuitive to overpay for a commercial rated laminate when you have the more cost-effective rated laminate at your fingertips.

In conclusion, when making a purchasing decision for residential laminate flooring, keep in mind that AC3 rated laminate is the highest level designated for domestic usage, making it durable enough for more than 95% of homes.

With so much choice, how do I choose the right one?

What type of floors do we put in our house? That's the biggest question that is asked by our customers. Hard floors, soft floors, waterproof or not waterproof. All these sort of ideas we have to think about when making this decision.

Here are FIVE simple steps you can follow that may help you.

One. Decide early. Your house is built from the floor up. So let's decide what sort of floors you want, what sort of colour palette, what sort of style in regards to other things you're going to have in your house, like the colour on your walls, some furnishings you might have, etc., etc.

Two: Think about your style, your personal style yourself. What sort of style are you trying to reflect through your floors?

Third one to consider is how durable you need your floors. What sort of lifestyle do you live in regards to needing hard floors or you want more carpet in your house.

The fourth step you want to have a look at is colour. Having dark floors will close in your rooms, but they also give you a sense of warmth. If you have a lighter coloured floor, it is going to open your house up and give a sense of space.

Fifth thing you should look at is do you have pets and or kids? What sort of lifestyle with pets and kids determines what sort of floors you're going to have in your house as well. You need the durability and the comfort, but it's important that they are long lasting.

So come into one of our Parrys stores. We have lots of flooring types here that suit all different types of lifestyles. Come and see one of our sales staff and they will help you with your selections.

" This is the 3rd time we have purchased carpet with Derek at Parrys Belmont, he is always helpful and nothing is too much trouble. Ilia the installation Manager has been fabulous, she has arranged the installation around our tight schedules and always kept us informed of dates and times, she has been a pleasure to deal with.

I would like to thank them both!

Are Hybrid Floors Safe?

Recent renewed attention on cases of serious illness and death linked to silica content in concrete products and manufactured stone composite bench-tops has, understandably, now placed under the microscope all things that may contain silica.

Within the timber flooring industry, hybrid flooring products (a timber lookalike product) have been identified as products that may contain small traces of crystalline silica.

These products include (but are not limited to):

- LVT – Luxury vinyl tile
- WPC – wood plastic composite flooring
- SPC – solid polymer core flooring
- Rigid plank or core

These, and other plastic or vinyl based products already on the market or set to join it, are generally formulated with plasticizers, stabilisers and other additives that often contain small elements of limestone, and this is where crystalline silica may naturally occur.

When it comes to concrete and kitchen bench-tops, wet cutting and the use of Respiratory Protective Equipment (RPE) is working to reduce – and hopefully prevent – new cases of silicosis.

The issue with hybrid flooring products is that they are unlikely to be wet cut, raising the concern that dust containing crystalline silica particles may be created. As such, it is essential that approved RPE is worn when cutting, penetrating or grinding these products.

Crystalline silica is found naturally in stone, rock, sand, gravel and clay. As mentioned, it may become part of hybrid flooring products via the use of limestone. When these materials are worked on, the concern becomes the creation of fine silica dust that can be easily breathed into our respiratory system. Use of these products by contractors and correct clean-up after use (to ensure the safety of property owners) is, therefore, critical.*

The following Parrys products have undergone approved third party testing to verify that they fall beneath the Safe Work Australia exposure standard for respirable crystalline silica. Parrys can produce certification of this, if requested.

- Aquaclic Hybrid Plank
- Poseidon Plus Plank
- Swan Hybrid Plank
- Authentic Hybrid Plank
- Maxi 7 Hybrid Plank

Note: There are many operators who sell 'cheaper versions' of Hybrid plank on platforms like Marketplace, Gumtree and other similar sites that cannot produce certification regarding safe silica standards. It is important you know that what you are installing in your home is safe and appropriate for you and your family.

HYBRID FAQs

What makes hybrid flooring 100% waterproof?

One of the hybrid flooring layers features a limestone composite core board that gives the product the waterproof properties. The same technology feature makes hybrid flooring odour-proof and resistant to scratches and stains. These combined properties make hybrid flooring a perfect option to hold up foot traffic even from pets as well as kids

How to clean and maintain hybrid flooring?

You should vacuum or use a soft dry broom to sweep the floor regularly in order to remove the loose dirt. Also, make sure to clean it using a neutral PH cleaner solution once a week to remove any footprints, scuffs, or stains. Alternatively, you can use white spirit with a damp cloth to get rid of the scuffs and stains. Read our guide on how to care for hybrid flooring.

Get it Sorted Before the BIG Day

After a few quiet and restful Christmases (COVID has had its benefits!), the borders are open – and that means your overdue international visitors will soon be staying with you for the festive season.

With your mother-in-law due to arrive from overseas in mid-December, isn't it time to fast-track some new flooring?

You and your wife may have been able to get away with that shabby carpet these past few years but your mother-in-law will no doubt once again bring out those (not-so) subtle disapproving looks (and nagging comments) if it's still there when she returns!

It's not just the state of the carpet; she also complains it's making the house too hot (a fool's choice, she says, adding that HER husband would have known better!) in these long summers.

It's true, though, that Perth summers are long and hot and that the carpet is making things look untidy too.

Believe it or not, the mother-in-law is right. It is time for a cooler change to help the family get through the warmer months – and a spruce up is also welcome.

Fortunately, Parrys has the answer to your flooring problems. We have fresh flooring options to suit any needs and that tick all the boxes – practical, affordable and visually appealing.

Vinyl is a good choice to look into. It's waterproof and resistant to scratches and scuffs. It also looks fabulous, is easy to look after and is highly durable.

Hybrid Flooring provides that cooler, fresh feeling and offers much-needed respite in Perth's hot weather. And, it features a beautiful appearance that even your mother-in-law will appreciate!

Timber Flooring can last for many years if it's well looked after, plus it is great for increasing the value of your property. It is comfortable and durable, if well cared for.

There are many options at Parrys Flooring and we know the ins and outs of what will work well in all types of home, so come in and talk to us to discover what suits your abode best.

And, remember, it's nearly Christmas, so you need to treat yourself too. You deserve to live like a King; you're no fool!
